Alleged check forgery rocks Bay City Hall

BY D.C. HARVILL

A member of the Bay St. Louis Mayor's staff, described as a "trusted, loyal employee" has been charged with committing forgery involving $7,000 in city payroll funds, according to the city judge with whom the charges were filed.

Administrative Assistant Lauri K. Byrd, a city employee for three and one-half years, surrendered herself to Bay police Wednesday morning after Mayor Victor J. Frankiewicz Jr. filed 14 affidavits against her Tuesday evening.

The affidavits were filed with Municipal Judge George Lipscomb who, at that time, issued a warrant for Byrd's arrest.

Wednesday morning, City Clerk Edward Favre filed an additional 14 charges on behalf of the city.

Byrd, 44, is charged with 28 counts of uttering forgery, involving 14 checks which she allegedly cashed between December 1986 and December 1988, according to Lipscomb.

The judge explained that while only 14 checks were involved, the 28 charges have been filed because two signatures, Frankiewicz's and Favre's, were allegedly forged on each check.

Uttering forgery involves not only the act of forging another's signature but also using the forged item to obtain cash.

Investigation of the case began in November 1988 when, during an annual audit involving 18 months in the last part of fiscal year 1987 and fiscal 1988, the Bay St. Louis accounting firm Moore and Powell discovered irregularities in the city's payroll account.

After the irregularities were found, an investigation involving the accounting firm and the Bay Police Department implicated Byrd.

A preliminary hearing has been set for Feb. 15.

Byrd has been placed on administrative suspension pending the outcome of the case, Frankiewicz said.

"It came as a shock to the whole staff. Lauri is one of the most capable employees we have. Many of the other employees at city hall depended on her for back-up when the work load got heavy. She is particularly flexible in dealing with all aspects of the city's business, and has shown a real flare for dealing with people when they come in with complaints," Frankiewicz said.

"It is especially stressful for me, being a close personal friend for over 20 years and having worked together the last three and-a-half years," he said.

Councilman John Wilkerson, during whose term Byrd has been employed, said, "I'm devastated. She's been a trusted loyal employee of the city for a long time, a damn good employee. We felt like she was doing a good job."

"I'm sorry to hear that whatever happened, happened, but I don't have enough information about it to make a comment," said new council member Charles Scianna Wednesday morning.

"I really don't know enough at this time to say anything about it," said Councilman Charles Johnson Wednesday afternoon.

Council members James Rutherford and James Thriffley could not be contacted for comment.

Attempts to reach Byrd late Wednesday afternoon were unsuccessful.

Railroad asked for help after wreck victim dies

BY DENA BISNETTE

In the wake of a major accident that has resulted in the death of a local woman, the Waveland Board of Aldermen is asking for help from railroad authorities.

Jenny Fernandez, 28, died about 10 a.m. Tuesday of massive head injuries, according to a spokesman for Memorial Hospital at Gulfport.

Fernandez had been hospitalized there since Friday night, when she was injured in a collision involving her car and a 157-car freight train at the Coleman Avenue crossing. Her vehicle was overturned in the accident.

According to Waveland Mayor John Longo Jr., who discussed the matter with the board of aldermen Tuesday night, Chesapeake Seaboard Rail Transportation, Inc. (CSX), owns the train and the tracks involved.

The board, during an earlier administration, has dealt with CSX several times, most notably regarding installation of gates at the Waveland Avenue crossing and the alteration of the steep grade and addition of more signals at Nicholson Avenue.

Longo said that in doing so, he has learned that the railroad has a matching program which allows the city to put up a percentage of the cost of improving a specific crossing.

The city may request work at a specific crossing but the railroad has the final decision on how much work can be done and on which crossings.

The mayor said he had drafted a letter to CSX regarding the Coleman Avenue crossing after he heard about the accident. The letter asks railroad officials to send someone to inspect the crossing and advise the board regarding what can be done.

"Lights, I think, would have saved this girl but if you've got enough on your mind you can pass a crossing and not even look," Longo said, adding that descriptions of the circumstances he has heard indicate that Fernandez, who was deaf, was probably on her way to pick up her young daughter.

"I know I've gone through crossings that way," the mayor stated.

The aldermen meet again at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 15.

County to reconsider animal commission

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is apparently still considering getting involved again in the operation of the former county animal shelter.

As a result of a decision of the Waveland Board of Aldermen, the county and Bay St. Louis have continued financial contributions to the shelter, which accepts animals captured from outside Waveland on a space-available basis.

The shelter is now operated by the Waveland Animal Commission.

The tri-entire commission that used to run the shelter was dissolved after the Waveland Board of Aldermen approved Mayor John Longo Jr.'s choice to take over the shelter, which is on property owned by the city and receives most of its services, including the disposal of euthanized animals, through Waveland, the mayor said at the time.

Several weeks ago, Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Frankiewicz

Jr. appeared before the board and said he had been discussing the possibility of forming a new tri-entire commission with the Waveland commission.

At that time, he stated that as he understood the situation, there is a possibility that the shelter can be expanded.

One of Longo's reasons for claiming the shelter as Waveland's was that all three entities agreed it was too small to serve both cities and the county, and another was lack of room for expansion.

However, Frankiewicz explained that room for expansion can now be arranged.

Board Attorney Gerald Gex was then assigned to draft an agreement for a new commission, with the specification that the organization be smaller than the original tri-entire commission, which at times included up to 17 members.

Gex presented his draft to the board on Monday, specifying that it is still "very rough" and "needs a lot of work."

The board is expected to consider the matter at a later workshop or meeting.

The next meeting is 9 a.m. Feb. 15 in the upstairs boardroom of the Hancock County Courthouse.

Pearson Pass Library artist of the month

BY D.C. HARVILL

The Pass Christian Library's artist for February is Joseph Pearson. An exhibit of his oils will be on display at the library through the month.

Pearson, whose art interests are just short of being as old as he is, is employed at Stennis Space Center as a visual information specialist.

His formal training began at Jackson State University, culminating with a B.S. degree in art education in 1969. Further training was pursued at the Art Student's League of New York, where he was awarded a full scholarship focusing on drawing and painting.

Pearson states that because there is beauty in life itself there is beauty in all things. He seeks to express something of man's relationship to the created and the Creator by expressing the beauty he sees in the seemingly ordinary and mundane around us, he says.

"What is art except the interpretation of the life around us, based on one's impressions formed through our personal experience and our own unique personalities? There is beauty in the agedness of a building because its character expresses the life that has been experienced in its occupancy," he says.

The artist states that he wants his work to be pleasing to the eye but, also to make the viewer think.

"Because of the influence of the social atmosphere and the

Henderson Point wreck kills two

BY DENA BISNETTE

A Gulfport man and a Pass Christian woman died Sunday night as a result of a three-vehicle accident in Henderson Point.

According to Lt. Bobby Underwood of the Mississippi Highway Patrol, the fatalities were identified as Jackey L. Williams, 57, of Gulfport and Susan Nicholson, 28, of Pass Christian.

Williams died at the scene and Nicholson died later in a hospital.

Two passengers in Nicholson's car, Mark Nicholson, 28, of Jackson and George Nicholson, 31, of Pass Christian, were injured. They were taken to Memorial Hospital at Gulfport by Mobile Medic Ambulance Service.

Underwood said the accident apparently occurred when the 1986 Ford van Williams was driving collided with Nicholson's 1987 Nissan on US-90 between the railroad bridge and the Henderson Point curve.

Williams was driving on the wrong side of the road, Underwood added.

He said a third vehicle driven by Joseph Zizzi of Orchard Park, N.Y., was not able to stop soon enough to avoid the wreck and hit the back of Nicholson's car.

State trooper Darryl Deschamps is investigating the accident.

Vision care offered to needy by optometrists, Salvation Army

Mississippi leads the nation in the highest incidence of blindness. There are many reasons for blindness and poor eyesight—reasons ranging from simple aging to injury to the eye.

Fortunately many eye problems are correctable with eye care and the uses of glasses. When we have an eye problem, most of us make an appointment with our local optometrist.

But what about those of us who simply can't afford to visit an eye doctor? Usually, the problem is ignored and gets worse. "Optometrists With A Heart," The Mississippi Vision Project is designed to provide vision care and services to individuals who would otherwise be unable to receive that care. Optometrists all across the state of Mississippi have agreed to give one day or the equivalent of vision care and services to the needy.

The Salvation Army will be screening the applicants to determine those individuals most needing of service. The program is designed to reach people who are not eligible for state or government eye care assistance, the working poor.

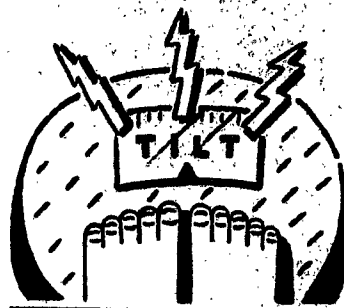

The theme for this program is "Optometrists with a Heart," because the first slated "Give One Day Free" is scheduled on Feb. 14, Valentine's Day.

If you are only making enough to cover the bare necessities of life without anything left over for vision care and are interested in applying for help from the project, contact the nearest Salvation Army Corps

Office at 2009 24th Avenue, P.O. Box 728, Gulfport, MS 39502, telephone No. 863-2355 or pick up an application form at one of the participating optometrists' offices in your area: Bay St. Louis, Dr. John Hanson; Gulfport, Dr. Barry Marshall; Long Beach, Dr. Max Edrington; Piquette, Dr. Thomas G. Hollis; and Poplarville, Dr. Ron Mozingo.

Application forms must be filled out and returned to The Salvation Army for eligibility screening.

A big boost to the project were donations from several agencies, corporations, businesses, clubs and individuals.

Hilda Bourg, Hancock County Recreational director reports that all types of donations will be appreciated. You can contact Bourg at 255-4425.

One of the reasons for the delay of the trail has been some unexpected large costs in subsurface drainage. We are looking forward to the walking trail at HMC and feel it will be a fine addition to the community.

Mardi Gras is once again behind us, and is now history for 1989.

There are many folks glad to see the end of Mardi Gras, while others would like to see the season throughout the year.

On Monday of this week I had two readers comment to me about The Sea Coast Echo's coverage of Mardi Gras this year.

One complained we carried far too much coverage while the other complained we didn't carry enough.

I guess that is the story of Mardi Gras, as some folks do not like it while others enjoy every minute of it.

We did notice the Krewe of Real People King Charles Johnson doing some ducking in order to pass under some tree limbs on Court Street as the parade passed Tuesday.

We have heard many truck drivers comment about the low limbs when making deliveries.

The cool weather kept many folks indoors, yet the ones who braved the chill seemed to enjoy themselves during the parade and at the Block Party which followed.

It will only be a short while and another parade will be rolling through the streets of Waveland for the annual Waveland Civic Association's St. Patrick's Day parade next month.

We know there are already some folks preparing their floats for that celebration.

We have been hearing and reading a lot in recent weeks about Adopt-A-School Programs across the country and we are happy to see programs being organized here in Hancock County.

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland and Hancock County School Systems are both in the program.

Any industry, business, club, organization or business interested can call the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce for further information. The chamber's telephone number is 467-9048.

Hometown News from the Capitol City

By Mississippi Reporting Service

County government got some new powers this week via the Mississippi legislature as the session moved past its first major deadline.

The Senate killed a proposal to establish a state lottery, probably ensuring that Mississippians will not get a vote on the issue this year. The upper chamber tied, 26-26, with Sen. Tate voting against the lottery, but it required a 60 percent vote.

The Senate also voted to allow counties to cooperate with each other to provide garbage disposal, jails and water systems.

The multi-county cooperative districts will be able to levy up to a half mill in property tax to support the joint projects. An amendment will also allow cities to form similar partnerships. To withdraw from the cooperative district would require the consent of a majority of a county's board of supervisors.

Rep. J.P. Compretta was on the losing side when the House decided that supervisors can regain the right to put gravel on private driveways if citizens pay a minimum of $20.

The day before, a bill to allow supervisors to gravel driveways at county expense failed because it required a two-thirds vote.

An overwhelming majority of House members were in favor of allowing counties to pay for graveling driveways, but it still failed on the first go round because it required a two-thirds majority.

The driveway vote has become an annual battle between urban and rural legislators. After a revised version of the bill passed, some city lawmakers warned that taxes will go up to pay for the gravel.

The House voted to make the state parole board full time. That bill was among many approved after the legislature passed the Tuesday deadline for committee action on non-revenue bills.

In November, a court awarded $3 million to a Jackson woman shot and paralyzed by a parolee. The over-worked part-time board has spent as little as three minutes on some prisoners' cases.

In other matters, the Senate decided against allowing school districts to charge students fees for their workbooks, though it was at respite reconsidering the measure.

A plan to close the state's three charity hospitals and use the money to expand the state's Medicaid program for use by patients throughout the state moved out of committee with advocates on both sides promising a fight to the finish.

HOUSE

House Bill 168. This bill creates a full-time state parole board to replace the part-time body currently in place. It passed 110 to 9 with three absent. Compretta voting yes.

House Bill 168, Amendment 1. This bill allowed parole board members to have a high school diploma, rather than a college degree but increased the requirement for related experience from three to five years. It passed 68 to 46 with eight absent. Compretta voting yes.

House Bill 168, Amendment 4. This prevents anyone who contributed more than $500 to a governor's campaign from being named to the parole board. It passed 69 to 49 with four absent. Compretta voting yes.

House Bill 923. This bill would have allowed county supervisors to resume the banned practice of graveling private driveways. It failed initially despite receiving a majority, 73 to 45, because, under the constitution, it was classed as a gratuity, and required a two-thirds majority, or 82 votes, for passage. Compretta voting no.

House Bill 923. This second version of the bill to allow county supervisors to gravel private driveways only required a three-fifths vote because individuals will have to pay for the service. It passed 75 to 41 with five absent. Compretta voting no.

House Bill 923, Amendment 4. This bill sets up a $20 fee charged to individuals for county supervisors to gravel their driveways. It passed 73 to 42 with one present and six absent. Compretta voting no.

SENATE

Senate 2617. Would have allowed Mississippians to vote on a constitutional amendment to allow a state-run lottery. Proponents claim it would have raised $24 million. The vote was 26-26, six votes short of the 60 percent majority required for bills that raise revenue. Taylor voting yes. Tate voting no.

Senate Bill 2591. This bill would allow school districts to charge fees to students for workbooks. There were 26 Senators in favor and 21 opposed, but it needed a three-fifths vote. It was being reconsidered Friday as this report went to press. Taylor voting yes. Tate absent or not voting.

Korean trade mission to visit Mississippi

Senator Thad Cochran announced that an eight-member delegation from the South Korean embassy will visit Mississippi Feb. 22-24 to explore possibilities for an increased economic relationship between Korea and the state of Mississippi.

The Senator said the embassy officials will work with the Mississippi Department of Economic Development to arrange meetings with state government, business and civic leaders.

Korean embassy officials approached Senator Cochran with the idea for the trade promotion mission following his visit to South Korea with Senator Richard Lugar (R-Ind.) in January. During their three-day visit to Seoul, they met President Roh Tae-woo and leaders of the three opposition parties.

Korean Minister for Economic Affairs M.H. Sohn will lead the delegation.

Railroad drop-gates could save a life

We live in an impatient society. We simply hate to wait—whether it be at the grocery store, the bank, the doctor's office, a restaurant or in traffic.

The former delays are bothersome at best; but the latter can be fatal. Making up lost time by depressing the accelerator pedal is ill-advised—ask any Highway Patrol officer.

Two deaths in as many months at Hancock County railroad crossings have prompted us to question the absence of drop-gates at the more frequently traveled intersections.

Although they do not guarantee accident-free crossings, they serve as an obvious deterrent to someone who otherwise may have tried to "beat the train", or to someone whose haste precluded more than a hurried glance in either direction down the track.

We feel that in the interest of our community, the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland should investigate the installation of crossing gates at several intersections. The cost incurred may save a life.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Mississippi boasts premier fundraiser in Thompson

When Ron Brown, the Democratic Party's soon-to-be first black national chairman, wanted to make his first ice-breaking journey into the South last week he picked an unlikely place to start: Mississippi.

What Democrat in Mississippi could he call who could open doors and put together a luncheon of top-of-the-line Democrats, white and black, almost overnight?

The answer was very simple: Walter Thompson, the white 42-year-old Clarksdale attorney, who has become something of Mississippi's "Mr. Democrat" in national party circles the last couple of years.

Actually, Thompson had never met Brown, himself a Washington attorney, who had been Jesse Jackson's campaign manager in last year's presidential race.

But when the phone rang, Thompson and Brown hit it off well from the start. Come on down Thompson said, and he'd get something together.

Not only did Thompson get "something" together, he turned out an impressive lineup for lunch in a downtown hotel ranging from Gov. Ray Mabus, and former Gov. William Winter, three elected state officials, the speaker of the House, to several top white business and professional figures, and leading black Democrats.

That such a crowd could be assembled at all in Mississippi to meet a visiting national Democrat after last November's presidential debacle was a tribute to Thompson. Moreso that the visitor was a black Democrat who had been associated with Jackson, whom many white Democrats believed helped scuttle the party's chances.

Of course, there was the attraction of getting a look at Brown, who turned out to be fascinating, bright and articulate, who made good sense as far as his desire to reach out and bring disaffected Southern Democrats back into the party.

Brown also seemed to make clear that Jesse Jackson has no strings attached to him and that he is his own man.

However, my gut feeling is that Ron Brown has a mighty tall order to fill, because conservative Southern white Democrats are not likely to make the distinction that Brown is not "Jesse's man."

Brown is one story, but Walter Thompson, from a Mississippi standpoint, is a story in himself.

A very successful plaintiff attorney, Thompson's fascination with national party politics has flowered since from his in-tial involvement as a fundraiser the ill-fated 1984 presidential bid of U.S. Sen. John Glenn of Ohio, the pioneer American astronaut.

Actually, Thompson had never been involved in political fund raising before. "I'd raised money for the Boy Scouts and the Episcopal Church, but never for politicians," the black-haired, round-faced attorney said.

It was also Thompson's first exposure to the political proclivities of the late Sen. James O. Eastland. Thompson went to Eastland's home in Doddsville to enlist his help in raising the initial $5000 needed as matching money for Glenn to qualify for federal election commission funds.

Within two hours, Eastland had summoned 20 of his oldtime contributors from the Delta to bring a $250 check to his house. "It was quite a sight to see one pickup truck after another drive up and put down the money," Thompson recalls.

Thompson went on to raise $75,000 for Glenn in the latter's losing effort for the Democratic presidential nomination. Out of the experience, Thompson would up in 1985 being on the National Democratic Finance Council, the fund raising arm of the National party.

Since then, Thompson has become the only Mississippi Democrat on the finance council's Board of Directors, which is made up of only those Democrats who have raised or given $100,000 to the party.

When Gov. Ray Mabus was running in 1987, Thompson personally accounted for raising $75,000 for Mabus' successful campaign, including $44,000 he raised at a Monday morning Washington D.C. reception.

Last year, after Sen. Al Gore of Tennessee dropped out of the Democratic presidential race and was quickly trying to pay off his deficit, he called Thompson and asked if he could raise $10,000. Even though Thompson was tied up in a jury trial, he managed to come through with $16,000 for a delighted Al Gore.

The trick, says Thompson, is to sandwich his national party work in with his law practice. "I enjoy politics, but my practice comes first," he says.

MSU architecture students propose Vietnam memorials

A group of Mississippi State University students recently expressed their feelings about the Vietnam War in a most creative way—by designing a public memorial.

One or a combination of several of the nine final proposals will be selected Feb. 16 for what may become Mississippi's tribute to its sons and daughters who served in the Indochina conflict.

The students' projects were not a hypothetical classroom assignment. Rather, they evolved from a formal request made to the School of Architecture by the Mississippi Vietnam Veterans' Memorial Committee.

In a letter to architecture professor Robert Ford, Bay St. Louis attorney Harry J. Cook III asked if the school could help develop some design proposals. Cook, himself a Vietnam combat veteran, said "the time has come for Mississippi to properly honor those (from the state) who served and, more importantly, the 637 who were killed and the 18 declared missing in Vietnam."

To Ford, the request sounded like a perfect assignment for the 35 juniors in his advanced design class.

The veteran's committee has announced plans to raise private funds for construction of a memorial at Biloxi's Point Cadet waterfront park, which is currently under development along U.S. Hwy. 90 near the Biloxi-Ocean Springs Bridge. Mayor Gerald Blessey and the Biloxi City Council have signaled their support for the proposed memorial by setting aside a parcel of land at the site.

Cook and 10 other members of the veterans committee came to MSU two weeks ago to view the nine proposals for the first time. The group also discussed with Ford the committee's plan for making a final decision on which one or more of the design ideas might be chosen.

"The thing that impressed me and the other veterans the most was the emotion that these students put into the models," Cook said. "Not only were they very nice (examples of) architecture but each was very meaningful and conveyed in some way at least one of the themes we want to make certain is included in the memorial."

Cook said arrangements have been made to display the models at the state capitol Feb. 16 as part of the veterans' parallel effort to gain legislative approval for the Biloxi site as the state's Vietnam memorial. The architecture students have been invited to be on hand to explain their proposals during the 10 a.m.-2 p.m. exhibition.

At a legislative reception that night at the Jackson Sheraton Inn, Cook said the committee will announce its preference for the memorial design.

Fourteen Coast Electric crew members, including eight association vehicles, will be working with these cooperatives for the next several days repairing

Let your love "flower" this Valentine's Week

Looking for an interesting way to tell your Valentine how special she or he is? Do you want to convey thoughts or feelings that are difficult to speak or write? Flowers are one way to do so—and speak a universal language of love.

Today, Valentines use all types of flowers to express their romantic feelings. According to Florists' Transworld Delivery Association (FTD®), the industry's leading flowers-by-wire service, consumers enjoy Valentine floral gifts of any color or type of flower as long as their overall appearance conveys the feelings of the occasion.

"If you want to say 'Be My Valentine' with flowers, you have a lot of options to choose from," explains FTD President Jim Durio.

"You don't have to buy a dozen roses—in fact, research shows that the most popular floral gift is a mixed, cut flower arrangement."

With this in mind, FTD has designed two special bouquets for Valentine gift-giving. For Valentines with a sweet tooth, the FTD Candy Hearts® Bouquet combines a romantic floral arrangement with a candy gift.

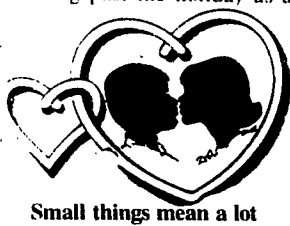

The bouquet of red, pink and white blooms is arranged in a ceramic bowl decorated with a red scribble-heart pattern. A matching plastic tray features a heart-shaped compartment where you'll find heart-shaped cinnamon candies.

Another arrangement sure to capture your Valentine's heart is the FTD Crystal Bowl Bouquet. In a hand frosted, 24 percent full lead crystal bowl, designed exclusively for FTD in West Germany, your florist will arrange a bouquet of fresh springtime blooms. The crystal bowl will serve as a reminder of your love long after Valentine's Week has passed.

An increase in the variety of flowers and design styles available gives Valentines a wide variety of floral gifts from which to choose.

Multicolor bouquets dressed up with red hearts or cupid's, for example, can relay a special romantic message and can be tailored to fit almost any budget.

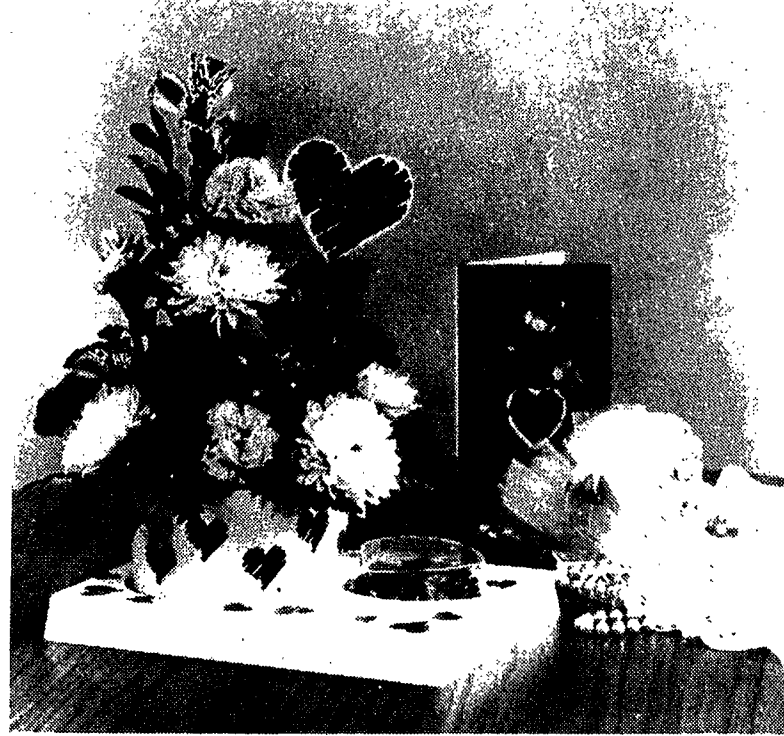

Even a green or flowering plant can be decorated with ribbons, lace or other accessories to serve as a Valentine gift, and will last long past the holiday as a re-

Small things mean a lot

Valentine's Day is a day to express grand emotions with little gestures. The communication of love, hope and caring can go a long way toward putting a smile on the faces of those around you.

Valentine Gi

A "RED HOT GIFT" FOR YOUR VALENTINE—The FTD® Candy Hearts® Bouquet expresses your message of romance to long-distance Valentines or to someone special right around the corner. This cheerful arrangement of flowers is displayed in a matching tray which includes a heart-shaped compartment filled with cinnamon candies.

Celebrities reveal fantasy gifts

No matter what may be said about the commercialization of Valentine's Day, many people will be found seeking the perfect gift as February 14th draws near. Why? Because most of us are really romantics at heart secretly believing in the power of love.

The celebration of romance has long been accompanied by the sparkling effervescence of Champagne, which makes even the simplest meal an occasion.

In keeping with this time-honored pairing, and in anticipation of Valentine's Day gift-giving, Champagne Perrier-Jouet surveyed several noted romantics to determine their idea of the most romantic gift to give or receive.

Mario Buatta is the interior designer most often associated with the lush and romantic English country look so reminiscent of a time when life was more gracious.

According to Buatta, "The most romantic gift ever was described to me a few years ago. A gentleman that I know invited his wife out for a special dinner to celebrate their 10th wedding anniversary."

"During dinner, he toasted her with Champagne—to her delight, he had dropped a diamond ring into the glass. Now, that is romantic."

Barbara Tober, editor in chief of Bride's magazine, related a very personal, and very touching story, "Some years ago, I was browsing through a friend's jewelry store. While there, I saw the most exquisite necklace of diamond ivy leaves."

"That Christmas, my husband presented me with earrings—diamond ivy-shaped leaves. In the language of flowers, ivy symbolizes fidelity. The gift was all the more special because of a thoughtful conspiracy between an old friend and my best friend—my husband."

Kathie Lee Gifford, co-host of the nationally syndicated television show "Live With Regis and Kathie Lee," offers her view: "The most romantic gift anyone can give a lover is the gift of self—time together devoted entirely to celebrating the love that they share."

"My husband Frank is incredibly romantic. Since we both have extremely hectic schedules, we plan dates. He'll light the fireplace, we'll prepare a simple dinner together, and share a bottle of wine with our favorite music playing softly on the stereo."

Fashion designer Mary McFadden is best known for the exotic evening gowns she creates. Says Mary, "I think that the most romantic gift you can give is Champagne Perrier-Jouet, in an exquisitely decorated bottle adorned with flowers."

"There's a magic and a mystery to the mood champagne creates that cannot be compared to anything else. It brings color to the cheek, a sparkle to the eye, and a whisper to one's voice. Nothing is more romantic."

As the author of the definitive volume Weddings, Martha Stewart has been privy to the many trials and tribulations of sweethearts. She related a delightful story with an O. Henry twist: "I know a very sweet young woman who was bound and determined to become engaged for Valentine's Day. She dropped not-so-subtle hints over the course of several months to her boyfriend."

"On Valentine's Day her boyfriend presented her with a beautiful, expensive watch. He urged her to look at it carefully to make sure she liked it. She turned it over—the words 'Will you marry me?' were engraved on the back."

Dawn Bryan, author of The Art and Etiquette of Gift Giving, describes herself as an "incurable romantic." While she truly believes that choosing a romantic gift is personal and subjective, she does offer some insight on what makes a gift romantic:

"Something that two people share together in a spirit of adventure, be it a treasure hunt in an antique store, or a cruise around the world. The most romantic gift I can conceive of is one that appeals to, and heightens, all the senses, which replicates the feeling of being in love."

The word "romance" connotes a world of meaning. To one person, it's a gift given that signifies something personal and special shared by two; to another, it's a moment when the world is inhabited by just two lovers; to a third, it's Champagne and candlelight.

A gift that's given in the spirit of the love that two people share is intimate, and, ultimately, unique. What could be more romantic than that?

Gift Ideas

Sweets for the sweet on Valentine's Day

Candy has always been a traditional Valentine's treat. You can personalize this orthodox gift by making the candy yourself. The following recipes for Coffee Fudge and English Toffee are duplicated from Joy of Cooking (Signet) by Irma S. Rombauer and Marion Rombauer Becker. This fudge with a twist will create new cravings, as will the traditional English Toffee.

COFFEE FUDGE

(About one pound)

Bring to a boil in a large, heavy pan:
One cup strong coffee
Remove from heat and stir in until dissolved:

2 cups sugar
1 tablespoon cream
1 tablespoon butter
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar

Cook these ingredients quickly, stirring them constantly until they boil.

Cover and cook for about three minutes until the steam washes down any crystals which may have formed on the sides of the pan.

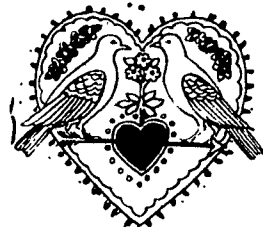

Uncover and cook over moderate heat to 238°. Remove from heat. Cool to 110°. Add:

1/2 teaspoon almond extract or
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

Beat until the mixture begins to harden. Add:

1 cup broken pecan or hickory nuts

Pour onto a buttered surface. Permit the candy to cool and harden before cutting into squares.

ENGLISH TOFFEE

(About 1 1/4 pounds)

Combine in a large, heavy saucepan and stir over quick heat until the sugar is dissolved:

1 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup cream

Stir and boil these ingredients for about 3 minutes. Add:

1/2 cup butter

Cook and stir the sirup until it is light colored and thick to the soft-crack stage, 285-290 degrees. Remove from heat. Add:

1 teaspoon vanilla or
1 tablespoon rum

Pour candy onto a buttered pan. When cool, cut into squares.

Message that you care

Valentine's Day continues to celebrate the tradition of love. You can say it and show it in many ways but, most importantly, each expression sends out the message that you care.

Mushy as the sentiment is, most people would not reject a Valentine gesture. Creativity is the key here. You don't have to be particularly artistic or versed to invent some Valentine tradition. By simply hiding love notes to be found, cooking a favorite meal, or sticking hearts on objects around the house, you can begin to celebrate this day of love in your own way.

Make heart-shaped toast or sandwiches. Embroider or paint "I love you" on a pillow case or t-shirt. Learn how to say "I love you" in a different language. Give out chocolate kisses.

Be sweet
to your Valentine!

Tigers participate in SSC Tournament

By Kanta' Haynes

BHS Correspondent

The Bay High Tigers tipped off the SSC Tournament with a 7 p.m. ballgame against the Pascagoula Panthers and on Friday with a game play at 4:30 p.m. against the Maroon Tide of Picayune. Tiger Cedric Walker walked away with the MVP award and Head Coach Michael Ladner also received an award for MV Coach.

THURSDAY

The Bay High Tigers took on the Pascagoula Panthers losing a ballgame of 76-44 with a well played defensive edge.

Leading Bay High was Freddie Necaize with 11 points and seven rebounds.

Assisting Necaize were Tigers Cedric Walker with nine points and eight rebounds; Alvin Dedeaux with eight points and Mike Kennedy with five points.

Also contributing to the Tiger team effort was Will Seymour with four points.

David Weems, Mike Scharp and Bruce Jones all shot in two-point buckets.

Sophomore Calvin Thigpen shot in one free throw basket.

Leading the way for the Panthers was Anthony Clark with 20 points.

FRIDAY

The Tigers took on the Picayune Maroon Tide in a tough varsity boys contest with the Bay High falling short to the Tide 67-59, but out-rebounded the Tide 31-30.

Bay High was led by Alvin Dedeaux with 19 points and 12 caroms and Freddie Necaize with 15 points, nine rebounds and five assists.

Also aiding in scoring big for the Tigers was junior Cedric Walker with 10 points and seven rebounds.

David Weems had seven points and Will Seymour and Mike Scharp both chipped in four points.

The Maroon Tide squad was led by Dennis Wooden with 12 points and Derrick Little, Kirby Fortenberry, Delon Marzette and Juan Aultman, all with 11 points.

Head Coach Michael Ladner had this outlook on the tournament: "We were hoping to perform in the tournament better than we did. However, we ran up against Pascagoula, a top flight team with tremendous size."

Ladner also stated, "Picayune was a winnable game, if we would have performed better."

Gulfport 'Great Day of Soccer' Feb. 18

Area youngsters will be able to test their soccer talents at the coast wide "Great Day of Soccer."

In its seventh year, the soccer competition is sponsored by the Coast Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Gulfport and the South Mississippi Soccer Club, and will be held Saturday, February 18 at Milner Stadium in Gulfport.

"The Great Day of Soccer is designed to be an all-around test of a youngsters soccer skills, and still be fun," said Larry Lewis of the South Mississippi Soccer Club.

"The Great Day of Soccer" competition consists of five basic tests: the throw-in for distance, long distance kicking, juggling, dribbling and goal kicking. The skills test should be a challenge for youngsters with soccer experience, but be easy enough for beginners.

More than 2,000 youngsters from the Gulf Coast and Louisiana are expected to compete in this soccer skills contest. The program is being administered by the South Mississippi Soccer Club.

Details on the program are available through local soccer leagues and at the Coast Coca-Cola Bottling Company.

GCRL seeks bass info

Fishermen who land striped bass are urged to contact researchers at the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs.

More than 80,000 striped bass were released into Mississippi's coastal streams during 1988, with some 12,000 of the food and game fish sporting identification tags attached by GCRL personnel.

"From talking to fishermen in the area, we feel that a lot more striped bass are being caught," GCRL associate biologist Larry Nicholson said. "It would be very helpful to our research effort if any person catching a striped bass, whether tagged or not, would contact the lab at 872-4242 to let us know where the fish was caught, its length and its weight."

Nicholson said more tagged stripers were reported by local fishermen to GCRL researchers during 1988 than any previous year. He said 247 tags were returned last year compared to some 150 during 1987.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

After the feasting, now the fasting, with the merriment of Mardi Gras supplanted by the days of Lent.

Although Lenten regulations and ways have been relaxed or lessened, many of us still keep Lent in the old ways to some degree—but that's no penance to one such as I, who grew up on the Gulf Coast and in New Orleans, where seafood is almost a way of life, and a delicious one at that!

Seafood gumbo with hot, crisp French bread and butter, Shrimp Creole or stew, eggplant stuffed with crabmeat and shrimp, fish, and so on and on. How delicious to feast on such as these!

One of my favorites has long been 'Trout Meuniere,' as served at Arnaud's restaurant in New Orleans' French Quarter—trout with parsley butter, accompanied by potatoes brabrant, crisp outside, melting-smooth inside.

I've also made this dish with catfish fillets, or other firm-fleshed fish. Here's:

TROUT MEUNIERE

1 1/2 to 3 lbs. fillets of trout
6 Tbsp. butter or margarine
Milk, flour, butter as needed
Lemon or lime juice
Minced parsley
Dip the fillets in milk, then in flour. Heat butter in a heavy skillet or sauteuse (saute pan)—barely enough butter to film the bottom of the pan. Cook fish until brown on the underside.

Then, using a spatula lest they break up, turn and brown on the other side. As soon as the fish flakes easily to the touch of a fork or when a knife tip is lightly applied to the side, remove to a warm serving platter, and sprinkle with the lemon juice and parsley.

At this point, you may drain the butter from the pan, replacing it with the six tablespoons of fresh butter. However, I prefer to swish a splash or so of white wine around in the skillet, scraping up those luscious 'burnings' at the bottom of the pan, then adding the fresh butter, heating it until barely brown. Then pour over the fish and serve at once.

You may wish to add sliced almonds for 'Trout Amandine' or pecans for 'Trout Pecanne,' or white grapes for 'Trout Veronique'—or whatever!

Small chunks of potatoes, parboiled and then browned till crusty, go well with this. (Six servings.)

(Copyright, 1989, Katharine D. M. Caire)

Seafood and Lent: a local tradition

Although the days of eating fish on Fridays only are long gone, seafood is synonymous with Lent and the coming of Spring for many Americans.

Lent—the 40 days from Ash Wednesday until Easter—is the traditional season for serving fish or shellfish due to religious rules regarding abstinence from meat.

Many Christian religions make a prominent place for traditional fish dishes on their Lenten menu. Here is one fool-proof recipe for baked fish, developed by the National Fisheries Institute as a delicious suggestion for a pre-Easter meal.

BASIC BAKED FISH FILLETS

1 pound fish fillets (cod, had-dock or flounder) cut into serving pieces

1/4 cup milk
1/2 cup yellow cornmeal
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/8 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon oil or olive oil
Pat fish dry with paper towel. Measure fish at thickest part to determine approximate cooking time. Pour milk in dish. Combine cornmeal, pepper and paprika in another dish. Dip fish into milk and then into cornmeal mixture. Place in a single layer in baking pan coated with vegetable spray. Tuck under any thin edges. Drizzle with oil. Bake, uncovered at 450 degrees, allowing 10 minutes cooking time per inch thickness or just until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve immediately. Makes about 4 servings.

ON PATROL

TWO INJURED

Two people were injured Monday night in a two-vehicle accident at Cuevas Junction.

According to Lt. Bobby Underwood of the Mississippi Highway Patrol, the injured driver was Melinda G. Peterson of Route One, Box 187, Pass Christian. Trooper Glenn Grice, who was at the scene, said she lost some teeth as a result of the collision.

Also injured was her passenger, seven-year-old Brandon Peterson, who suffered a broken leg. The child was taken to Hancock Medical Center by Mobile Medic Ambulance Service.

Underwood said the accident occurred when Laurie Dee Moeller of Route Six, Box 786, Bay St. Louis, turned her 1986 Chevrolet van at Highway 43 and into the path of Peterson's 1983 Ford, which was travelling on Highway 603.

Grice is in charge of the investigation.

Folk artist chooses Bay as new home

BY DENA BISNETTE

Folk artist Alice Moseley is being welcomed to her new home in Bay St. Louis with a Sunday tea Feb. 19 at Serenity Books on Main Street.

The tea, from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m., will feature exhibits of her work along with those of other Mississippi artists and the Renaissance music of Consortium Musicum.

The 79-year-old artist's prints have been available at Serenity since last year, when she was a featured artist at the Beachfront Festival.

She met Serenity owner Jerry Dixon when a rainstorm began. He took her and her works into his shop so she could continue exhibiting.

Moseley, a Birmingham, Ala., native, lived at Plum Point Retreat on Lake Enid near Batesville and had just received five invitations for shows. Deciding to accept the first one she pulled off the pile, she chose the Beachfront Festival and found herself in love with a new place.

She had been contemplating moving when she visited the Coast.

"Jerry is a lot of why I came to Bay St. Louis. He's just been so helpful and so nice," she said.

Moseley and her son, Tim Moseley of Houston, Texas, visited several cities on the Gulf Coast but always came back to Bay St. Louis. Once she had settled on Bay St. Louis, Moseley looked at 18 houses and finally decided on a wooden, shotgun-style dwelling on Bookter Street.

"This was the only one I really liked," the artist said, adding that she prefers an old house because "it has character."

At 79, moving from North Mississippi was considered a major decision for Moseley by some of her friends.

"What difference does age make? If I want to do something, I just go out and do it," she said.

She noticed a number of other artists living here. "I don't know what there is about this place. It has an intangible quality I can't describe.... If they felt the same thing I did, there was just a certainty about moving here."

"You can't get this kind of privacy in town anymore and if I ever get back to painting, privacy will be important," Moseley stated.

Moseley, a retired English teacher who got her master's degree at age 56, did not actually take up painting until she was 60, when she was caring for her elderly mother.

Moseley bought herself a box of acrylic paints and started with French Quarter scenes as her subject matter. A man from Memphis who owned a theatre saw some of her work and set her up with her first exhibition.

The artist has never taken any lessons in drawing or painting, although she was tempted to do so because she lived near University of Mississippi.

Painting is an outlet for her. "I've had some tragedies in my life and this has gotten me through them," Moseley said.

Her style has been described as primitive but moves toward abstract in works like "The Legend of the Dogwood" and "Life has So Many Angles."

Her subject is no longer the French Quarter, but scenes from life. She has painted several one-room schoolhouse incidents in bright, cheerful colors.

"I never had any art lessons so I can get as loud as I like without offending anybody," Moseley said, "and I think one of the things that makes my work different is that I use a lot of people."

"I bore easily. I wouldn't have this versatility if I'd been formally trained in art because if I had, I couldn't paint the way I do in good conscience."

Every art show judge who has discussed her work with her has taken her aside to tell her never to take lessons, and several have told her that the ingredient differentiating her work from that of other primitive painters is humor.

Humor shows in paintings like "Even a Blind Sow Gets Some Acorns Once in a While," which shows the title character in dark glasses with a white cane; "Why Do Women Always Do This?" which shows two ladies backed up to a fireplace with their skirts lifted to warm the backs of their legs; and "Three Sheets to the Wind," which at first glance is a painting of a cheerful country home with three white sheets on its clothesline, but on closer examination shows a drunk staggering past the house.

Sometimes travels inspire her work. While visiting Alabama, she heard of a coon dog cemetery, which she went to see. It became the subject of one of her paintings.

Her personal favorite is "Until Today I Thought I Was Folks," which depicts her late bird dog, Joe, going to heaven and finding it divided into Folk Heaven and Pet Heaven. She has sold a number of prints of the painting, but has chosen to keep the original, which she will eventually give to her son.

She paints with acrylics because they dry quickly.

"I paint rapidly. My greatest fault in beginning this was to learn what to leave out and when to stop. I still have to watch myself to keep from being land store, The Frame Shoppe. She also shows her work at home by appointment only.

Moseley disagrees with artists who tell her selling prints cheapens her work, partially because the sales pay her expenses. She has found that most people who buy one buy others, as her work tends to attract collectors. It has also attracted a number of awards.

She was chosen to provide some illustrations in Southern Living's latest series of cookbooks and a set of paintings depicting Elvis Presley has been included in a recently published biography of the singer.

Moseley said living in Bay St. Louis will enable her to do more shows in Louisiana, where "they seem to appreciate folk art more."

However, she said she will cut down on the number of shows in general, partially because loading paintings and

Mrs. Ray Mabus, wife of Mississippi's governor, and Mrs. Walter (Sissy) Anderson, the artist's widow, are honorary chairwomen for the Friends' campaign that is aimed at raising near $1 million to finance an art museum in honor of the prominent painter in his own hometown of Ocean Springs.

Jackson arts, crafts show seeks exhibitors

The Jubilee/JAM Arts and Crafts Market has announced 60 available exhibit areas at the third annual festival celebrating Mississippi art, music, food and fun.

With an expected attendance of more than 75,000, the streets of downtown Jackson will be alive with activities for the entire family beginning Friday, May 19 and continuing through Sunday, May 21.

"This year's market has expanded its hours as well as its location," said Clyde Rader, special events manager. "We will begin the arts and crafts on Friday, a day early, and run through the weekend."

The hours are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday, 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday, and noon to 9 p.m. on Sunday. The covered exhibit spaces will be located in the center of the festival in the heart of downtown Jackson.

The booths are limited to crafts and two-dimensional art exhibits operated by juried craftsmen and artists. There is also paid demonstration time available.

Exhibitors may apply for either the arts and crafts market or the demonstrations or both. Deadline to apply is Feb. 15 and notification of selection will be made by March 1.

HEALTHNOTES

Contributed by Hancock Medical Center

Quick action can be heart attack lifesaver

(Editor's note: This is the second of a three-part series on heart health. February is American Heart Month.)

Heart attacks can happen to anyone. In fact, many people suffer the symptoms of a heart attack and either fail to recognize them or refuse to acknowledge them.

"By familiarizing yourself with the symptoms of a heart attack, you can avoid delaying treatment, which could result in a more severe heart attack or even death," said George Crafton, M.D., cardiologist with Hancock Medical Center. "Recognizing the symptoms and knowing what to do when they occur could save your life, or the life of a friend or family member."

Crafton cited three of the most common warning signals of a heart attack:

- * Uncomfortable pressure, fullness or pain in the middle of the chest for more than two minutes

- * Spreading of pain to shoulders, neck or arms

- * Severe pain, dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea or shortness of breath

The severity of the pain of heart attack varies with individuals. Some are so mild that you may think it is indigestion.

"Not all of these warning signs are always present," Crafton said, "and some may subside and then return." But if you or someone around you suffers from any of these symptoms, get help immediately.

What do you do if someone around you experiences chest discomfort for more than two minutes? The first thing you should do is call the emergency rescue service in your area for help, Crafton said. You should not try to drive to the hospital yourself.

Second, be prepared for denial of a problem. It is natural for people to refuse to admit that they are having a heart attack. Finally, if you are certified in CPR, be ready to administer mouth-to-mouth breathing and chest compression, if needed.

"The best action to take in dealing with a heart attack is preventative," Crafton said. "Know the symptoms of a heart attack and how to recognize them"

Post emergency numbers near all the phones in your home. You can also decide on an appropriate hospital before a heart attack happens.

Finally, become trained and certified in perhaps the most important lifesaving instruction you can receive -- CPR. These preventions could make the incidence of a heart attack a little less frightening and save someone's life.

Tonight Hancock Medical Center is hosting "Here's to Your Heart," a program on heart health and heart attack prevention. The program begins at 7 p.m. in the hospital cafeteria. Dr. James Crittenden, weight loss specialist, and J.E. Loiacano of Loiacano's Health Club will address these heart issues.

For more information about heart attack risk and prevention or to schedule a group speaker on the topic, contact Hancock Medical Center at 467-9081.

HELPING HANDICAPPED—Judith Wells, left, and Janice Carver, both of Bay St. Louis were recently presented with citations from the Commissioner of Rehabilitation Services John Cook. Both are employees of the vocational rehabilitation division in Bay St. Louis, where they were recognized for outstanding work in helping people with severe handicaps to become employed.

Seal on task force to study Miss. State athletic funding

A 16-member task force appointed Jan. 30 by Mississippi State President Donald Zacharias will study the university's funding of its intercollegiate athletics program and recommend ways to increase revenue.

Made up of alumni and friends of the university and including faculty and student representation, the task force is expected to make its recommendations to President Zacharias this spring.

Named to chair the group was Dr. Roy Ruby, vice president for Student Affairs at Mississippi State.

"Not just at Mississippi State, but everywhere, the funding of collegiate athletics is becoming a major problem," Ruby said. "It's also a rapidly changing field, and the university has to keep abreast."

"Adding to the challenge at Mississippi State is the fact that we're a smaller institution in a superpower conference. We can't afford to neglect any possible sources of revenue," Ruby said.

Mississippi State's athletic budget of $6.7 million is the lowest in the Southeastern Conference and less than half that of the league leaders in spending. The task force has been asked to identify ways to move financing of Mississippi State athletics closer to the SEC average, Ruby said.

Virtually the entire athletic budget is self-generated, primarily through ticket sales, television appearances and private contributions. State funding used for the athletic program is limited to $300,000 a year.

The comments and suggestions of university supporters concerning funding of athletics at Mississippi State will be welcomed by the task force, Ruby said, and should be mailed to him at P.O. Drawer DS, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Ruby said the task force will talk with outside consultants to gain a better overall view of the problems associated with athletic funding, and will invite SEC Commissioner Harvey Schiller and Dick Schultz, National Collegiate Athletic Association executive director, to visit the campus.

Task force members in addition to Ruby are:

--Bob Bullock of Meridian, an alumnus, former MSU athlete, and member of the board of directors of the Bulldog Club;

--Eddie Burns of Jackson, a businessman and former MSU athlete;

--Albert C. Clark, a Starkville businessman and alumnus;

--Tommy Everett of Magee, treasurer of the MSU Alumni Association;

--Mickey Holliman of Belden, an alumnus and member of the board of directors of the Bulldog Club;

--Lori Jones of Columbus, a Mississippi State senior;

--Bobby P. Martin of Ripley, treasurer of the MSU Development Foundation;

--Clay McWilliams III of Cleveland, president of the MSU Alumni Association;

--Paige Moses of Jackson, an alumnus and member of the board of directors of the Bulldog Club;

--Dr. Walt Newsom, faculty athletics representative at MSU;

--C.W. "Tex" Ritter of Kosciusko, former president of the MSU Development Foundation;

--Denton Rogers of Pontotoc, an alumnus and former member of the Board of Trustees, Institutions of Higher Learning;

--Leo W. Seal Jr. of Bay St. Louis, an alumnus and former MSU athlete; and

--Darrell Smith of Tupelo, president-elect of the Bulldog Club.

Serving as consultants to the task force will be Dr. Billy Ward, vice president for administration; Larry Templeton, athletic director; and Molly Halbert, director of the Bulldog Club.

Mississippi State's athletic program consists of eight men's and seven women's varsity sports involving more than 240 athletes.

DOWN HOME

By Darlene Underwood
Hancock County
Home Economist

Why not make a resolution this year that can be achieved in just a few short hours? The resolution...clean out your clothes closet!

The first step in getting your closet organized is the most time-consuming. Take every piece of clothing out of your closet and separate into one of three piles:

1) clothes that look nice, fit, and you will wear again;
2) clothes that fit and you will wear, but are in need of repair; and

3) clothes that do not fit and you would never wear again even if they did fit.

The clothes that look nice, fit and you will wear again go back into the closet. As you put them into the closet, do so in a logical manner, grouping clothing types together.

Repair clothing items with problems within the next few days. If you choose not to do the repairs yourself, pay someone to do them for you. Do not procrastinate or the clothes may go out of style before you ever get the chance to wear them again.

The clothes in the "never-to-be-worn-again" pile should be given to someone who will wear them. Some local charities give tax write-offs for donated clothing items and most churches have "emergency closets" for the needy.

If you feel ambitious and decide to clean out all the closets in the house, a yard sale makes a lucrative alternative for getting rid of unwanted items.

Once your clothes closet is clean, neat and organized, why not carry your resolution one step further...resolve to keep it that way for the rest of the year.

There are several local organizations that take clothing for the needy. Gulf Coast Women's Shelter, Biloxi, will take only current season clothes as they have no storage space. The Salvation Army, Gulfport, St. Vincent dePaul Society, Waveland and Goodwill Industries, Bay St. Louis are likely candidates for used clothing.
